For Stockholm, Novelties in New Tabloid and Change in an Old Daily

Ş,

STOCKHOLM - Stockholm has a new daily newspaper, a rare event in big-city life these days. It also has a rich and powerful morning newspa-per that is offering its own kind of novelty: an acknowledgement that it went wrong in its approach to the news, and is making an attempt to change.

The new paper is Stockholms Tidningen, a morning tabloid, owned by the Social Democratic Party, that thinks it can find a niche by reaching party members, concentrating on local news and the kind of church-league hockey scores that the city's four other dailies pass up.

The paper in trouble is Dagens Nybeter, the most successful and ambitious of the country's quality newspapers, which began losing circulation in 1975 and has not stopped since. After a long experience and has not stopped since. After a long experience with what many saw as a radical, propagandistic approach — articles about the virtues of nascent Socialism in developing countries often displaced, reports of more immediate concern from the front page — Dagens Nyheter has a new chief editor who

Australians Will Join

"It is a question," said the editor, Bengt Dennis, in an interview, "of telling clearly what happened yesterday. It isn't enough to be factual. We've got to be fairer."

The new paper is the first in the city since 1945, and its coming is an event in a country that has a particularly deep involvement with its press. General newspaper circulation in Sweden is increasing, with more newspapers being distributed per capita. according to an industry spokesman, than any-where else except lociand and Japan.

Stockholms Tidningen's birth has a wider significance, though, in that it may have something to do with a political tactic that worked very well in France in the period leading up to the election of President Francois Mitterrand, There, a morning tabloid called Le Matin was founded in Paris with the clear goal of hringing a Socialist point of view into the campaign. The editor of Stockholms Tidningen, Sven O.

Benet Dennis. of the Swedish population is in the Stockholm area, and if you don't win here, you can take everything in the countryside and still not get elected."

Nonpropaganda Approach

"The paper can serve as a bit of the kick in the pants to our party workers," he noted. It can offer them some themes when they're talking to people. This may sound like a contradiction, but we also know that no one is going to pay what we say the slightest bit of attention unless we respect every-one's intelligence and take a fair, nonpropaganda approach."

Stockholms Tidningen has reached a modest cir-culation of 55,000, which, in theory, is all it needs to break even. It cost about $3 million to start up and has annual costs of about $11 million - both low figures. The newspaper hopes to take advan-tage of the Swedish press subsidy law, which began offering cash support to papers in 1967 after a se-ries of closures in many cities.

The new paper, with subdued typefaces and a rather low-pressure approach, is in contrast to the very aggressive afternoon tabloids, Expressen, which has Scandinavia's biggest circulation, and Atcombidet a lafet or approach to the lost or Aftonbladet, a leftist newspaper that has lost con-siderably in terms of market position over the years. Instead, Stockholms Tidningen seems to have adopted a bit of the quieter manner of Svenska Dagblader, the conservative morning paper, which has grown each year that Dagens Nyheter has been shrinking.

Mr. Dennis, the new editor at Dagens Nybeter, who came to the paper in February after a career in television news management and government, has hired some new news executives and has tried to improve the paper's business and local coverage. The approach to the news, be believes, has already been changed. It was a matter, Mr. Dennis said, of taking out the polemics.

Dagens Nyheter appears to be making a profit this year, but the newspaper's circulation, accord-ing to Mr. Dennis, is still falling. "We've got to jump, and hard, to turn it around," he said.

In last year's in-dictment and other reports, details were disclosed about Mr. Wilson's private business activities in 1976 and 1977, his help in training terrorists in Libya by shipping explo-sives and his hiring of former Army Special Forces troops for the training operation. In 1976, shortly after ending his employment with the Office of Naval intelligence, which he had joined after leaving the CIA, Mr. Wilson closed a business dcal with Col. Qadhafi to sell his expertise in intelligence, arms and explosives to Libya for the training of terrorists.

A few years later, after U.S. investigators began examining his activities in the United States, Mr. Wilson shifted his base of husiness operations from Washington to Europe and Libya. About the same time, several companies controlled by Mr. Wilson began using the London office of Brilhurst Ltd., a British company, according to as-sociates of Mr. Wilson and compasaid that Brilhurst appeared to op-erate as the London branch of Mr. ny documents.

India Scorns Move

formation from foreign institutions.

SEC officials say that they have found the Swiss authorities coopcrative, but the CFTC's bid for records of the Banque Populaire Suisse produced a protest to the State Department from the Swiss Embassy. The State Department warned the CFTC that it was best to drop the matter.

Commodity regulators, however, for the first time established their legal authority to punish foreigners for failing to provide information. Ousting the Banque Populaire from U.S. markets for three months still did not produce the facts that the CFTC wanted. Some people in the agency suggest that a subpoena enforcement action might have been more effective: Tell the Swiss to provide information or be held in contempt - and be suspended from trading - until they do. The SEC also is encouraged by its success in freezing the profits of illegal trading through foreign ac-counts, but it is difficult to catch the money when millions can be made in a few days.

Mr. Evans suggested providing a legal mechanism for the SEC and CFTC to go to court quickly to freeze funds on a temporary basis and broadening the SEC's authori-ty to subpoena foreign records.

Another remedy is being dis-cussed by the House subcommittee pursuing the Santa Fe case: Changing the rules of the stock and commodity exchanges to limit the use of secret accounts and putting the obligation to disclose the name of customers on the broker who handles the order.

The brokers would certainly fight that. They claim that tough disclosure rules would scare for-eign investors out of U.S. markets.

Parliament Rejects Choice By Khamenei for Premier

LONDON — Iran's parliament on Thursday rejected the nomina-tion of a hardline, American-educated fundamentalist as premier.

The Majlis refused by 80 votes to 74, with 38 abstentions, to con-firm the nomination of Dr. Ali-Akbar Velayati in what some members welcomed as a sign that the parliament was not completely under the domination of the ruling Islamic Republican Party.

Dr. Velayati, 36, was nominated on Monday by President Ali Khamenei to replace Ayatollah Mohammed Reza Mahdavi Kani, a moderate clergyman who re-signed unexpectedly on Oct. 15.

Members of the Majlis reached by Reuters from London said that the chief reason for rejecting Dr. Reuters from London said that Velayati was that there was insufficient evidence that he had taken part in the fight to overthrow the shah.

Unlike most of the four earlier premiers since the revolution in 1979, he did not spend time in prison under the shah. President Ali Khamenei said later he would send a new list of candidates to the Majlis on Sunday. Sheikh Sadegh Khalkhali, known as the hanging judge for sending hundreds of Iranians before the firing squad, told Reuters that the president would propose the fun-damentalist Foreign Minister Hossein Mousavi, Education Minister Ali-Akbar Parvaresh and Oil Minister Mohammad Gharazi. Mr. Mousavi and Mr. Parvaresh are leading members of the IRP.

Although President Khamene nominated Dr. Velayati as premier and described him as an efficient and valuable person, he later applauded the parliament's decision as courageous. He told the news-paper Kayhan that the Majlis had shown that it was independent during debate on important issues.

Low-Key Approach

Sheikh Khalkhali said the nomination might have been approved if Mr. Khamenei had appeared in the house to brief deputies on Dr. Velayati's record.

The outgoing premier, Ayatollah Mahdavi Kani, unlike the majority of politicians in power, has been criticized for his low-key approach to countering a wave of assassinations and bombings in a country shattered by internal unrest.

Congressional enthusiasm is increasing for overhauling once again the maze of laws and regula-tions that govern Pentagon spending.

But disregarding inflation, the unit cost of the Army's new M-1 tank, for example, climbed 76 percent during the past year, and the cost of the Navy's F-18 fighter rose by 43 percent, according to the Congressional Budget Office.

A major factor in the cost in-creases, according to Alice Rivlin, budget office director, is that some defense contractors may make un-realistically low estimates of the cost of their weapoo in order to get the program under way, expecting to raise the price after the Pentagon has invested a few years' worth of development funds.

Escalator Clauses

Also, she said, Pentagon plan-ners have consistently used low es-timates of the effect of inflation on procurement programs. Most defense contracts carry automatic es-calator clauses that pass inflation-ary costs back to the government. The overruns inexorably force the Pentagon to cut back future purchases, and that, in turn, raises the cost of the weapons that are purchased. Sen. William S. Cohen, Republican of Maine, said that the total cost of 47 major weapons sys-tems escalated by $48 billion in the final three months of last year, swallowing up the domestic budget cuts that Congress approved earli-ert this wear er this year.

Although Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger and his deputy, Frank C. Carlucci, have undertaken efforts to reform the nuclearishen erforts to reform the Pentagon's procurement proce-dures, military analysts told the committee Wednesday that previ-ous efforts at reform had failed and current efforts appeared doomed as well.

One problem, according to Lau-rence E. Lynn Jr., a Harvard pro-fessor of public policy, is that deci-sions to develop and purchase weapons systems are based on assessments of what will be required on future battlefields. Such basic decisions, he said, are typically made early in the development process at levels well below the scrutiny of top Pentagon officials. By Judith Miller New York Times Service WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has drafted a proposal that could make it much easier for U.S. officials to classify information as secret and more cumbersome to declassify documents, according to administration officials.

The 31-page proposal, which is being circulated among agencies of the executive branch for comment, would replace Executive Order 12065, the basic framework governing the classification and declassification of "national security information," which was signed by President Jimmy Carter oo June 28, 1978. The Associated Press MADISON, Conn. - An earthquake jolted a large portion of the Connecticut coastline and eastern Long Island Wednesday, shaking some buildings but apparently causing little or oo damage.

Peking in June to untangle the 17year dispute through negotiations. [A Soviet foreign affairs journal has reasserted that Moscow is "always ready" to resume border oegotiations with China, despite what the journal calls China's "anui-Soviet course," The Associat-

[The Soviet news media have not yet confirmed reports from Peking that proposals were made for renewed talks on the disputed Chinese border.] Io recent months, the two Communist giants have moved farther away from a border settlement by entering into arrangements with third parties that have frozen their positions and raised suspicions. Moscow concluded a boundary treaty with Afghanistan in June, angering Chinese who say the territory covered by the agreement was stolen from China by czarist Russia in the 19th century. Moscow in turn cried foul after U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. visited Peking io June and unveiled plans to consider sales of arms to China that could

"The Russians are trying to arouse suspicioo in Washington of a rapprochement between China and Russia," said the analyst, who believes Peking will reject the Russian offer. "It's just a trick."

Although the border clearly remains the flashpoint of Chinese-Soviet relations, Peking seems far less preoccupied with the Soviet threat from the oorth today than in the 1960s, when Chinese citizens were exhorted to dig underground runnels as a precaution against Soviet attack.

Xu Xin, deputy chief of the Defense Ministry's think tank, told members of the Trilateral Commission meeting in Peking last May that the Russians would need four to five million troops and 10 years to vanquish China.

Col. Chamlong Srimuang, a senator who also is an aide to Premier Prem Tinsulanonda, is the most vocal opponent of abortion. He said that women who want abor-tions are "sick" and predicted a wholesale increase in female promiscuiity if the bill becomes law.

Moreover, he said, abortion clashes with Thailand's domigant religious faith, Buddhism, which opposes all killing.

Advocates say there probably will be an iocrease in the number of abortions, at least at first, if the bill becomes law, but they scoff at the idea that women will become more promiscuous. Sixty percent of the women seeking illegal abor-tions, they say, are married.

As for the statement that abortion runs contrary to the Buddhist iojunction against taking life. abortion advocates point out that. Thailand has one of the highest homicide rates io the world. Besides, they add, Thailand imposes the death penalty for certain crimes

Replying to the argument that a Buddhist country like Thailand should not legislate the taking of a life, Dr. Suporn asked: "Should we then legislate against the killing of cows and other animals for food? I think it is more a matter of what we are doing it for. Does it better the condition of the people?

The Thai press, including English-language newspapers here, heavily favors legalized abortions.

Quiet, Comfortable Hungary Looks Back on 1956 Revolt

Young People Are Told About the Fierce Time of 'Treason' and 'Counterrevolution'

By Ronald Farquhar

Thailan

Restor BUDAPEST — Hungarians are quictly living through the 25th an-niversary of the 1956 anti-Stalinist uprising that split their nation, with the ghosts of the past appar-ently laid to rest.

No ceremonies, official or unofficial, were planned to mark what a Hungarian television commentator this week described as "a national tragedy."

Three weeks of street battles between Hungarian rebels and Soviet soldiers and tanks erupted from peaceful student demonstrations for more democracy on Oct. 23, 1956. More than 2,500 Hungarians were killed, according to official statistics, along with an unknown number of Soviet soldiers.

Hungary's Communist leaders under the party chief Janos Kadar appear confident now that conciliatory policies of bberalization and modernization introduced gradual-ly during the past 25 years have healed deep and bitter wounds left by the revolt.

The students and young workers in the forefront of the 1956 rebellion, now middle-aged, hardly talk about it any more, a Budapest resident said.

dent said. Modern Hungary is probably the most stable, politically and economically, of Eastern Europe's Communist nations, having none of the supply problems of Poland and Romania and little visible internal dissent

The mood in Budapest this week was briskly business-as-usual, with no trace of the tensions and passions of 1956. There was nothing visible to recall the shattered buildings, the debris-strewn roadways, the burned-out vehicles and the bodies in the streets.

But some specters emerged this month in newspaper articles, radio broadcasts and television programs. There were references to the disgraced Communist leader Matyas Rakosi, who was blamed for injustices, wrongful arrests and other errors that provoked public wrath that spilled into the streets.

In 1956, wreckage of a tank and other debris littered the streets of Budapest.

Mr. Rakosi was challenged in an inner-party power struggle by a liberal, Imre Nagy, who was elect-ed premier during the uprising but who later was arrested and execut-1975. ed for treason. Mindszenty, Roman Catholic pricounterrevolution." mate of Hungary, who was freed during the rioting after eight years of detention by the Communists. He sought asylum in the United Army rolled into Budapest on

Nov. 4, 1956, to crush the revolt after pulling out during a short-lived cease-fire.

The official account said legitimate public anger over errors and crimes committed under Mr. Rakosi were exploited by counterre-volntionaries who, with Western encouragement, had long been planning to overthrow Communist rule and restore capitalism. Mr. Nagy was depicted as a weak politician who lost control of the situation and finally capitulated to the rebels, agreeing to demands for a multiparty system and Hungary's withdrawal from the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact military alliance. The party historian Balint Szabo said in a recent television discussion: "Subjectively, Nagy did not want counterrevolution, but objectively the platform he adopted not only prepared the ground for counterrevolution but retreated in front of it."

Communist officials said the purpose of the newspaper and ra-dio series and the television program, which included newsreel films of the 1956 demonstrations and fighting, was to explain to ynung people what had happened. Half of Hungary's population of 10.7 million is under 35.

"Young people who have grown up in stable conditions find it hard to believe such things could happen, and they kept asking us bow it was possible," said a member of the Communist Party's Central Committee.

The radio and television remin iscences were selective in their presentation and left a number of questions unanswered. They em-phasized the excesses of the insurgents, including lynchings of Com-munists and security policemen, and an attack on Communist Party beadquarters in Budapest.

Western "imperialists" were prominently accused of supporting and aiding the "counterrevolu-tinnaries." But the role of the Soviet Army in putting down the re-vult, though recognized and ap-plauded, was not described or dep-icted in detail, nor were the casualties among the students and workers who fought them.

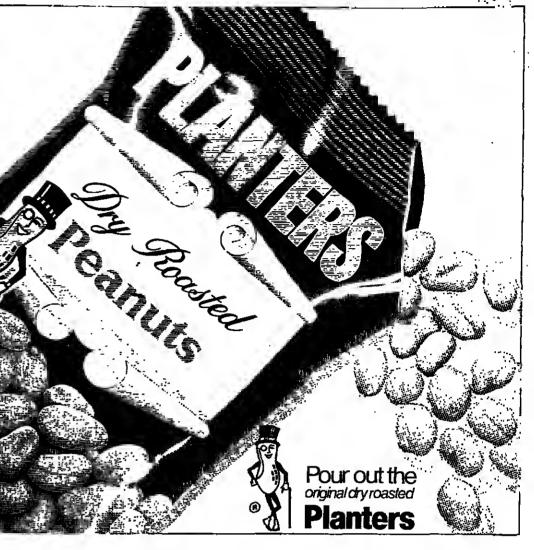

There was no mention of the ab-duction of Mr. Nagy and a group of his associates on Nov. 13, 1956, as they left the Yugoslav Embassy in Budapest, where they had sought asylum, on what they believed was a safe-conduct pass.

Soviet soldiers arrested them and they were exiled to Romania. Mr. Nagy was later brought back to Budapest, tried secretly, convicted of treason and executed with three others in 1958.

It was a crisp September morning in 1919. A Handley Page 0/400 in Europe was born and American Express was there.

> -the city-sized airport and the jumbo jet were fifty years into the future. The beautiful Handley Page 0/400's, the Farman Goliaths and the de Havilland 4A's bounced across the close-mown grass of Hounslow or Cricklewood embryo Aerodromes, ascended with dignity and nosed eastwards to follow the Thames to its mouth before turning south for the Channel and France.

The pilots carried French railway timetables and were given a five-pound emergency fund with which to speed passengers and mail onwards in case of a forced landing.

The Times had a special section in its weather report which advised passengers of the prospects for air travel that day.

Sir Charles Bright, member of the Air Commission and early communications pioneer, opined that leadership in the new mode of transport would significantly enhance the welfare of the empire. Mail to Australia, for instance, currently took five weeks, by air it would take only 12 days.

There were four main British airlines - Daimler Air Hire. Handley Page Transport, North Sea Aenal Transport and Avro. All were soon to be amalgamated into Impenial Airways, and, much later, to become British Airways. American Express represented two of them with energy, some success and much faith.

An American Expressman of the times wrote:

Physicaple courses of Particle Action

History will record the first steps made in aerial navigation and it is a source of no little satisfaction for the American Express Company to be aligned with the two great companies who first made it possible to fly between England and the Continent."

History has thus recorded. American Express, already half a century in Europe, had made its first contribution to European air travel.

The next one hundred years. One hundred years on from 1881 and the arrival of American Express in Europe, the Company is part of the warp and weft of European finance and travel in particular and business in general.

As American Express moves towards even closer partnership with European business, there appears to be no 100 YEARS limit to what may be achieved together.

Ungarbling the Argument

President Reagan bungled what he had to hattlefield, and is not followed by escalation say on nuclear war in Europe, but some of the European responses have deliberately contributed obfuscation to a vital debate.

It was clear from Mr. Reagan's remarks last Friday that he had not given careful thought to the modalities of tactical nuclear warfare and the scenarios of escalation. These are the stuff of analyses by think tanks and by the Pentagon. Mr. Reagan's remarks on the subject were imprecise and unconsidered, and it is proper that they have been officially reinterpreted.

The president also spoke with that casual and, to people abroad, infuriating American hahit of assuming that only Americans are listening. Since his election he has often ruminated upon great matters in a way which suggested that the rest of the world were merely the sand-table upon which the problems and tactics of Soviet-American conflict are sketched out.

But the essential issue is simple. Everyone knows that if the Soviet Union invades Western Europe, nuclear weapons are likely to be used against the invading force. A ouclear war which then is limited to the European to intercontinental strategic warfare, may not be particularly plausible, but it is imaginable. To say this is so, as Mr. Reagan did, is not in the least to say that it is American policy cynically to try to confine nuclear war to the territory of its allies. But that is what some people have tried to argue.

Now it may he, as some European comments this week have seemed to imply, that Europeans do not wish to have the Soviet threat deterred, or that they do not wish to have it deterred by the agency of American missiles in Europe. If so, they have only to so convince their governments.

There certainly will be no American missiles deployed in Western Europe if the West European governments declare that they do not want them. Whether the people of Europe would then be better off, the threat to their safety less than it is now, their liberties more secure, is not evident. NATO would never have come into being if that were plainly so. But such is the real debate, and it deserves to be conducted with greater seriousness than was the case this week.

What Cancún Can Do

The mass summit meeting at Cancuo Thursday and Friday will oot oarrow the development gap hetween the world's poor, mainly in the Southern Hemisphere, and the rich, chiefly in the North. But it can narrow the rhetorical gap. It can breathe humanity ioto dry discussions of dull statistics. And if it reaches for a few practical goals, the coofereoce can stimulate a more effective attack on the poverty that scars and darkens too much of the globe.

Those are plausible hopes as 22 heads of government, or their surrogates, mill about a sumptuous Mexican resort. Giveo the unstructured and unprecedeoted nature of the meeting, there are also some risks. The United States could be singled out, as often before, as the mean and greedy witch of the North. But President Reagan makes an implausible villain. He was right to go.

Mr. Reagan is oot just doing a favor for Mexico's President López Portillo. His pres-ence underscores the absence of the Soviet Union, the stingiest of the advanced nations. It also honors the summit conference proposal first made in the important but widely ignored Brandi Commission report.

What the former West German chancellor and his committee envisioned was a seductive global bargain: Let the industrial North lower its trading walls to imports from the South in exchange for an OPEC agreement to hold steady the prices and supplies of oil. No such bargain is now feasible. The OPEC noose has loosened, and industrial economies

But how the policies of the rich affect the poor should oever be overlooked. Setting the U.S. ecooomy right and reducing interest rates would do more for the weaker economies than all the aid dispensed by developmeot banks. Mr. Reagan has been arguing cogeotly that development begins at home, with prudeot economic management. But his free market corollary is wishful thinking. The successes achieved by private enterprise in America, South Korea, Taiwan and the Ivory Coast cannot be simply reproduced.

That idea leaves out America's temperate climate and bountiful soil, its early reliance on ill-paid workers, unpaid slaves and European capital, and its wise use of public subsidy to build roads, harbors and railways. It overlooks the tide of trained immigrants filling a largely unsettled continent. Today's poor oations can count oo little of that which is why even the Ivory Coast's free market economy is deeply in debt, why South Korea is asking Japan for $6 billion in aid, and why Taiwan, too, needs generous American loans.

Mr. Reagan needs no American blarney to counter the Third World's. It is enough, in Mexico, to work for practical results: Outline a global energy policy, promote agricultural self-sufficiency, look for ways to guarantee investment, and lower trade restrictions.

The Brandt Commission, in proposing this meeting, put the matter bluntly: "The search for solutions is not an act of benevolence, but a coodition of mutual survival."

WASHINGTON - The largest gath-W ering of free Germans since John F. Kennedy went in Berlin in 1963 turned out in Bonn the other weekend to protest a plan to place oew American ou-elear missiles io West Germany. The immediate cause of this powerful

The immediate cause of this powerful new tide of sentimeot was the plan adopted by the NATO Council two years ago for the placement of 572 land-based mid-range thermonuclear missiles in Western Europe, some 200 of them in West Germany. These missiles are in-tended as a counter to Soviet deployment of new theater weapons, in particular what the West calls the SS-20, a modern, sophisticated mobile missile that can reach all of Western Europe and the Middle East and much of Asia.

According to Secretary of State Haig, there are already 750 warheads deployed on SS-20 launchers, and in his view the SS-20 and other new theater systems have "presented the alliance with a threat of a oew order of magnitude."

At the end of next month, U.S. and Soviet negotiators will sit down in Geneva to negotiate oo the question of the limitation or reduction of those systems and perhaps others that can reach West-ern Europe or the Soviet Union. This effort is the necessary twin to the plan for missile deployment.

Given the strong European desire to see the proposed U.S. deployment oego-tiated away, and the widespread belief that the new U.S. administration is unen-thusiastic about arms control, there would be considerable danger of a split between Europeans and Americans, even if the issues that will be put on the table were simple, and even if the Soviet gov-erament were full of eagerness to ensure the unity of NATO.

But because there is indeed a substanbut because there is modeed a substan-tial Soviet advantage in the special field of theater-range missiles, and because there is growing division among Euro-peans over the urgency and desirability of the new U.S. weapons of this class, it will be very easy indeed for Moscow to make very easy indeed for Moscow to The basic premise for the proposed new force was that without it, primarily because of the new effectiveness of the SS-20, the Soviet Union would have a new capability for ouclear attack on Europe against which the West required a new and balancing counter. But this ba-

The Somali government finds itself in a difficult situation. Some 1.3 million refugees, Somalis and Oromos from the Ogaden, live in 35 special camps. and 800,000 refugees live outside the camps with rel. 1 alives. The refugees are a staggering burden for the Somali economy, which has also been damaged by floods to recent months. Medical assistance, sanitary facilities and the drilling of wells remain the highest prioritles. Food distri-bution is no longer a direct Somali responsibility, The government has signed agreements with Afri-care, a voluntary agency, and the Central Mennonite Committee, in addition to the high commissioner, and retains only coordinating functions.

Besides the refugee problem, security is a principal coocern to Somalia. With the Soviet-supported Ethiopian Army still fighting the Western Somali Liberation Front in the Ogaden, and Cubans ready to quash any coup attempts in Addis Ababa, a ground invasioo is unlikely, but Ethiopians have raided Somali territory several times in the last 18 months. Ethiopian planes have attacked Somali vilages and refugee camps repeatedly this year, causing

Investment From Abroad

Anxieties about foreign investors, and rumors that they are somehow surreptitiously buying cootrol of the country, keep recurring in Washington. There is oothing to them. Foreign ownership has been rising, but it falls far short of control of any significant sector. Investment from abroad, like domestic investment, strengthens the American economy. The evidence is that foreign investmeot is still small by the gigantic scale of the Americao ecooomy, and is oo threat to its stability or anything else.

Of all the OPEC countries' surpluses since the first big price increases eight years ago, it appears that slightly less than one-fifth has come to the United States. Much more of that money is in Europe.

Kuwait has just bought Santa Fe International, an oil drilling company, for $2.5 billion. Why not? Americans have bought a lot of Kuwaiti oil over the years, and it's nice to see some of those dollars come home.

Foreign takeovers always touch national sensitivities, and congressional committees properly keep an eye on them. But it is useful for Congress, and everyooe else, to remember that of all the countries in the world, the United States has the broadest interest in maintaining an orderly flow of international investment free of political assaults. U.S.cootrolled oil operations abroad represent four times as large an investment as all the foreign-cootrolled oil companies in the United States. The door has to swing both ways.

That is not only true of the oil industry. Total direct investment by foreigners in U.S. companies by the end of 1980 amounted to $65 billion, the Commerce Department reported recently. Direct investment means that the foreign owner has at least 10 percent of the company's stock --- presumably a cootrolling ioterest. By cootrast, Americans' direct investment abroad was $213 billion, more than three times as much.

Two-thirds of that foreign investment has come from Europe, Next ranks Canada, and then Japan. All the rest of the world, including OPEC, holds a little over ooe-tenth of all foreign ownership in the Uoited States. THE WASHINGTON POST.

On Political Conditions for AWACS

The Reagan administration, having failed to convince the Zionist lobby about the AWACS deal for Saudi Arabia, has resorted to laying down political conditions which amount to blatant interference in the internal affairs of an independent state. This is interference which contravenes the most basic rules of international law, about which Washington talks a lot.

This means that the U.S. president can blatantly interfere wherever he likes in the policy of another state that has the full right to make political decisions that serve its interest. What the president meant by the thwarting of Middle East peace is American peace, or the Camp David peace, which Saudi Arabia and all the Arabs have rejected. - From al-Ittihad (Abu Dhabi).

A Fundamentalist Surge in Egypt

The widespread arrests of terrorists and reports of rioting show that Islamic fundamentalists of various hues are not just a marginal force in Egypt. The government will have to ehange its policies, domestic and foreign, to win popular support, which alone can enable it to cope with the fundamentalists.

PARIS -- Today's editorial in the Herald reads: "Russian affairs, both internal and external, have provided the 'yellow' section of the world's press with so much stirring material of late that Turkey and the fastern question have been givon a little breathing time. So far as sensation mangers are concerned, Russia and Turkey occupy the opposite ends of a sort of seesaw. When one is up, the other is down. The opening shot in a new campaign was the recent report that the Sultan was at the paint of death. These gloomy predictions are an indirect compliment to the Sultan's capacity as a ruler, for even newspaper sensationalists concur that while he lives, the polibeal situation in hurope is unalterable."

until now has been an unwritten but generally accepted principle in the media establishment: that the state (meaning, the governing po-litical parties) controls radio and television, the political parties own their own openly avowed party newspapers, and the independent press is unencumbered by either government or party political ownership - at least not overtly.

System at Risk

Despite behind-the-scenes political backing for some newspapers, the system has worked until now.

Italy, with Greece, rates lowest in the European league of newspaper readers. A recent United Nations survey shows that only one in every eleven Italians buys a daily paper, against one in every two in Sweden and Britain. So the change of ownership would not normally cause the flurry of excitement that Visentini's statement and the subsequent rumors have enused, But the ownership question has spilled into the political arena, and is threatening the government. Like Le Monde in Paris and The Private enterprise recently op-posed the established media system when Rizzoli, which owns a chain of private television stations. acted as front-runner for other private television operators and appealed to the Italian constitutional court to allow their stations in re-lay national news broadcasts, thus challanging the state's monolpoly of the airwaves. # French '81 Outlook Is Fair to Good in Small Harvest

Wine

By Jon Winroth International Herald Tribune

PARIS - As the grape harvest comes to an end throughout France, the 1981 vintage was hardly what the doctor ordered for a wine market afflicted by rision prices. The crop is generally small. in some areas only one-third to one-half normal, and nowhere is it much above average in size.

Quality, on the other hand, runs from fair to good. Prices will continue to rise just about everywhere, because this is the second small CTOD in a row.

BORDEAUX: In Médoc, Eric Rothschild, manager of Château Lafite-Rothschild, says: We're reasonably happy." Quality is a little above average, which means Lafite and other estates will be able to select their best for bottling under their own names and sell lesser wines under secondary labels. Rothschild says the grapes were healthy with good sugar con-tent. He compares the 1981 vintage to that of 1971: It should be ready for drinking in 10 years (which is young for a first-ranked Médoc), yet it should also last well, which can mean 50 years or more

In Graves, Jean Delmas, mana-ger of Château Haut-Brion, reports smaller quantity, less than-grapes as good as or better than some we are using now." Since 1911, when Champagne growers mounted what came close to a civil insurrection over imports of cheap wine into their area, the government has been strict about what is Like much else in France, quality is a commodity that can almost be cut with a knife. In the Champagne region the best grapes come from areas with a 100 percent rating, the rating being based on the excellence of what they produce (it is the key factor in determining their earnings) .. Bollinger rarely dips below 95 because its own vineyards are so well placed.

Many smaller producers are content to take all their grapes from vines rated 75 or 78, and the quality is instantly recognizable in the wine.

Most agriculturists know that the areas they want opened up are in poorer regions, but insist that a first-rate wine can be made from

It is incontrovertible that if worldwide demand continues to rise, there will not be enough to go around, except at the most elevated prices. Most big Champagne houses like to keep at least three years' stock on hand. Some of the big ones are dipping down into two dropping last year. BEAUJOLAIS: The crop is small, only I million hectoliters. 200,000 less than last year, says Pierre Ferraud, a shipper at Belleville. The grapes were very healthy and the wines should be good with color and depth. They will probably be better a few months after the new wine is first released for sale on Nov. 15. Prices are likely to be up by 25 percent, with this year's Beaujolais going for 1,600 to 1,700 francs the 216-liter pièce, or barrel, as against 1,300 to 1,350

CHAMPAGNE: The crop was eatastrophically small, according to Georges Vesselle, vincyard di-rector for G.H. Mumm & Co. It amounted to only 310,000 to 320,000 pièces of 205 liters, and this after last year's already small harvest of 415,000 pièces. Al-grapes were very healthy, full of uger and with a good balance of acidity. He expects the wine to be rather tannic, harder than the 1978s. The whites should also be good, but there will not be very much of them.

In both Pomerol and Saint-Emilioo, accordiog to Christian Moueix of Château Petrus, quantity is just above average while quality is quite good. He compares it to something between 1971 and 1975: less "amiable" than 1971, yet less tannic than 1975. The grapes were very ripe and healthy with a good balance between the sugar content and acidity BURGUNDY: The crop is very small, only half the size of a normal vintage, according to grower Hubert de Montille at Volnay. In the Côse de Nuits it is even smaller than in the Côte de Beaune because of spring frosts and summer hailstorms. The reds produced only about 25 bectoliters to the hectare, while the whiles came off better with about 40 bectoliters to the bectare. There was not much rot but sugar content is rather low. There is enough acidity but it re-mains on the low side. De Montille expects his own wines to be better than last year's, perhaps more like the 1979s. Prices are likely to rise sharply after slowing and even francs last yea

expected, hut good quality. The though the quality of the wine is very good, it will probably not be vintaged because all of it will be needed for regular champagne. Although the price of grapes dropped from last year's exceptional 23.50 francs per kilogram to 20 francs this year, prices will cootinue to rise in order to discourage sales. LOIRE VALLEY: Muscadet grower Louis Metaireau at Maisdoo-sur-Sèvre reports a half-sized crop of only 25 hectoliters to the hectare. As in most areas with a small crop, a cold, wet spring caused pollination failure and the appearance of many undeveloped, or "shot," grapes, so called from their small size, oo higger thao shotgun pellets. The grapes were healthy and the wine should be good if pressing was done genily. The proportion of stems to grape is very high and pressing hard could give a bitter taste from crushed stems. No stocks remain and prices are rising by 50 percent to 1,500 francs the 225-liter pièce. The Chinon region harvested fairly late, says grower Charles Joguet at Sazilly. Quantity is very irregular but should be about average-sized overall. Rain during the first half of October diluted the sugar and acid content of the grapes and compromised what otherwise should have been very good quality.

In Touraine, grower Henry Mar-ionnet at Soings says he hrought in a harvest only one-third as big as usual, 20 hectoliters to the bectare instead of 60. The quality of both his red gamay and white sauvignon will be excellent, what there is of

RHONE VALLEY: The harvest is also small there, says grower Paul Coulon at Châteauneuf-du-Pape. But quality is very good. The grapes were healthy, with plenty of

Ah, the food in Europe! It's really something else. You'll sample the kinds of treats you wish you could share with the folks you left behind. So make their mouths water, Give 'em a call. But be sure to check these mark-saving tips first. SAVE ON SURCHARGES

Many hotels outside the U.S. charge exorbitant surcharge fees on international calls. And sometimes the fees are greater than the cost of the call itself. But if your hotel has TELEPLAN, the way to keep hotel surcharges reasonable, go ahead and call. No Teleplan? Read on!

There are other ways to save money. SAVE WITH A SHORTLE

In most countries there's no threeminute minimum on self-dialed calls. So if your hotel offers International Dialing from your room, place a short call home and have them call you back. The surcharge on short calls is low. And you pay for the callback from the States with dollars, not local currency, when you get your next home or office phone bill. SAVE THESE OTHER WAYS

Telephone Company credit card and collect calls may be placed in many countries. And where they are, the hotel surcharges on such calls are usually low. Or. you can avoid surcharges altogether by calling from the post office or from other telephone centers.

"Hessische Landesbank is a government-backed regional bank which derives the first part of its name from Hesse, one of Germany's foremost federal states with its financial capital Frankfurt. The second part points to our activities as banker to the State of Hesse where we also perform clearing functions for the state's 52 Sparkassen."

What are the bank's main activities?

"Hessische Landesbank is fundamentally a wholesale universal banking institution. Our services cover the full range of commercial and investment banking. We concentrate on medium to long-tcrm lending, which means that our main clients are large corporations, government entities and financial institutions."

And short-term transactions?

"We are also an attractive port of call for substantial deposits. Combining the obvious advantages of a government-backed Frankfurt-based bank and the capabilities of our dealing rooms in London, New York, and Luxembourg, the bank has expanded its money market operations considerably, serving central banks, other financial institutions and corporate clients.

Naturally, we also conduct extensive foreign exchange transactions, primarily on behalf of corporations and Hesse's Spar-kussen."

What about your overall position in interbank business? "Size, of course, is important.

With total assets of more than DM 54 billion, we are Germany's 10th largest bank.

We also issue our own bonds and SD Certificates – the total outstanding is over DM 22 billion - which means that our own funding capacity is quite substantial. At the same ume, these lixed-interest securities are an attractive DM investment for institutions."

What are your strengths in the securities market? "We are particularly active in domestic bond trading. Here our clientele includes institutional investors as well as financial in-ctiputions. Moreover, we provide stitutions. Moreover, we provide our foreign clients with information and research on both German fixed-interest securities and shares, and act as depository bank for them. The bank participates regularly as underwriter in foreign DM issues and other publicly offered Eurobond issues."

Where do you put your emphasis in international financing?

"In addition to our traditional strength in the medium and long-term sector, we are increas-ingly providing internationally active corporations with working capital and financing international trade."

And your commercial banking activities?

"We have an excellent record in documentary business where our correspondent network is of special value. Also worth mentioning is our membership in S.W.L.F.T. Foreign clients appreciate our advice and guidance on German business activities."

What is your guiding philosophy for your long-term development? "Above all, Hessische Landesbank emphasizes quality service. We are conservative in approach, and do not pursue growth for the sake of growth. We program our growth to mutually profitable client relationships."

The Associated Press GENEVA - The takeover of the Swiss branch of one of the leading

French banks nationalized by the French parliament has been completed, it was announced Thurs-

doy. Banque de Paris et des Pays-Bas (Suisse), or Paribas-Swiss, said it has been informed by the legal rep-resentative of Pargesa Holding, o Swiss financial group, that it had acquired a controlling interest in the branch bank.

Paribas-Swiss is a subsidiary of Cie. Financière de Paris et des Pays-Bas in Paris, whose chair-man. Pierre Moussa, resigned from the banking and investment group Wednesday. Mr. Moussa had been blamed by the French government for failing to stop the takeover of Paribas-Swiss.

A spokesman for Paribas-Swiss said it was informed that Pargesa had acquired "more than 50 per-cent" of the branch, but did not go into further detail. Pargesa was a little-known com-pany until recently. Shortly before announcing its takeover bid, it changed its name to Pargesa Hold-CAPITAL ing, sharply increased its capital and announced an additional increase to finance the takeover.

The takeover prompted heated RESEARCE debates in France's parliament, where management of the mother company came under sharp criti-cism by Socialist deputies. Mr. Moussa promised the French gov-- The substance story. and in Ray ernment after the takeover bid was anoounced in Geneva that he would oppose it.

French Economics Minister Jacques Delors said in parliament Wednesday that Mr. Moussa in fact helped prepare the takeover.

In Paris on Thursday, Prime Minister Pierre Mauroy described Mr. Moussa as having the "meutality of an emigre." Mr. Mauroy told journalists that "there are laws for all citizens of the republic and no one can bypass the laws."

Mr. Mauroy said that if reports that the takeover bid had been successful were confirmed, "Then I say that Mr. Moussa has not acted like a citizen should. He has the mentality of ao emigre."

Observers said that in using the word "emigre," Mr. Mauroy was comparing Mr. Mousse's action to that of the royalists who fled France during the French revolutien.

Many U.S. Firms Observe Arab Boycott of Israel By Edward A. Gargan

New York Times Service NEW YORK - Many U.S. companies that do business in the Middle East are complying with an Arab economic boycott of Israel even though a U.S. law specifically forbids it.

Commerce Department figures show that last year U.S. companies acceded to more than 60 percent of Arab requests to refrain from using blacklisted ships, banks or goods of Israeli origin. The requests involved trade valued at cearly $7 billion a year, the department estimated,

In most cases, the companies' acquies cence did not violate federal law, but more than 100 other instances are under investigation as possibly illegal. Several persons familiar with the anti-boycott law have questioned its effectiveness. One, a senior Commerce Depart-ment official in the Carter administration asserted: "Business on the whole has complied with the boycott. The law allows the boycott to go forward."

Lost Sales

By contrast, business spokesmen gener-ally complain that the law, enacted in 1978, has caused U.S. companies to lose substantial sales. The Israeli government says that, although the law is not perfect, it has generally had a positive effect.

The variety of views is not surprising. Though the statute forbids compliance with the boycott, it also contains exceptions that allow most U.S. commercial transactions with Arab countries to include contract wording acceptable to the Arabs. "If they want the goods, Arab countries will accommodate themselves oo lan-

Arab countries have boyconted Israeli products from the beginning, but in 1955 they started blacklisting persons and com-panies doing business with Israel. Any company that does so may be placed on the blacklist.

Increase in Number of Fines For decades, it has been U.S. policy to oppose all boycotts aimed at friendly nations, but only in 1978 did it become illegal for U.S. companies to participate directly io the Arab boycott of Israel. Since then, the number of companies fined for complying with this boycott has risen every year. In the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, a total of $384,500 in fines was collected from 20 companies. About 130 other companies are under active investigation, according to the Commerce Department, which is respon-sible for monitoring the antiboycout law. But a senior official of the department, who asked not to be identified, said enforcement was "oot a top priority" of the Reagan administration. "We don't want any witch bunts," he said. Illegal compliance with the boycott is usually discovered by Commerce Depart-ment officials only through the law's requirement that companies report any request from a country to engage in a restrictive trade practice. Among the cases that were settled during the last year were these: • Minnesota Mining and Manufactur-ing was fined $137,500 for 230 violations. The incidents included providing "nega-tive certificates of origin" — statements

It was accused of furnishing information to an Arab country about other persons or companies that were believed to have been restricted from doing business with Israel. A Rockwell spokesman, James Vallela, refused to discuss the fines.

• ITT Grinnell, owned by a subsidiary of International Telephone and Tele-graph, was fined $50,500 for 101 instances failing to report boycott requests to the Commerce Department. A spokesman for the company, Michael Crissan, would not discuss the fines, but he said that to his knowledge the antiboycott law had oot had much effect on the company's busi-

Pacific Gas & Electric *

During Congressional debate over the antiboycott legislation in 1977, many U.S. companies vigorously fought it.

The Israeli government maintains that the law has worked, at least partly. But its officials are coocerned, as are some members of Congress, that the Reagan administration intends to reduce its enforcement efforts as part of its generally sympathetic atutude toward the business world.

Representative Benjamin 3. Rosenthal, the New York Democrat whose House subcommittee oversees the Commerce Department's enforcement activities, said the law had flaws. "The law ought 10 be strengthened," he said. "But with a very low priority in Commerce under this administration, the chances are zero."

The 1978 law prohibits U.S. companies from furnishing informatioo about business relationships with boycotted countries or blacklisted persons.

Exceptions to the law, however, let companies comply with a boycotting country's import requirements as to where the products originated, its export requirements as to where the products will eventually go and with its visa requirements. (Many Arab countries insist that Ameri-cans sent to work inside their borders not be Jewish.)

Under the law, no U.S. company is permitted to declare that its products are not of Israeli origin. Arab countries often ask for a declaration of this sort.

But a company is permitted to state that its products are made wholly of U.S. (or French or Japanese) raw materials and are manufactured entirely in the United States (or France or Japan). Such roundabout language has often been accepted as a substitute by the principal boycotting countries - Saudi Arabia, Syria, Bahrain, Iraq, Jordan. Kuwait, Lebanon, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates.

What makes TDB exceptional? Our export financing, for example.

With a name like Trade Development Bank, you would expect us to know a good deal about export financing. And, in fact, we are considered specialists in this field-including one increasingly important aspect of it known as "à forfait."

A forfait is the discounting of notes representing the proceeds of exported goods, without recourse to the exporter. The bank which buys the notes assumes the sovereign risk and provides the exporter with immediate liquidity.

The theory sounds simple enough, but it takes some exceptional know-how to put it into practice. For example, indepth knowledge of foreign commercial procedures, legal codes, jurisdictions, risk analysis and more. Fortunately, we've had long experience with export financing, so we can relieve exporters of these burdens.

TDB serves international businessmen in other important ways too. In addition to trade and export linancing, we're considered specialists in foreign exchange and banknotes, money market transactions, precious metals and deposit accounts.

Serving our clients well has helped us grow uncommonly fast. Today, we're big enough to provide most of the sophisticated facilities of the international banking giants-but lean enough not to keep you waiting for decisions.

As part of the Trade Development Bank Holding Group, we're ready to serve you in most of the world's financial centers.

After Dizzying Growth, Alfa Moves to Austerity

By Alan Riding New York Tumes Service

> MEXICO CITY - Over the last four years, the Alfa Industrial Group oot only has been Mexico's largest and fastest-growing conglomerate but also it has become a symbol of the extraordinary economic boom that oil wealth has brought to this couotry.

The group, founded in 1974 with Hylsa Steel as a nucleus, has spread into tourism, petrochemi-cals, electrical appliances, food processing and capital goods. And its assets, sales, profits and work force have grown about 50 percent each year.

But suddenly Alfa's dizzying rate of expansion has tumbled the organization into trouble. First, about 2,000 executives were laid off. A shake-up of top manage-ment followed. Finally, the government's public works bank, known as Banobras, recently bailed Alfa out of its financial squeeze with a $680-million credit.

For months, Alfa refused to make any public comment on its widely discussed problems. After the Banobras credit was approved, however, Alfa's management decided to tell its story.

Interest Rates Cited

"All sorts of half-truths have beco published," said Juan Morales Doria, who heads the Monterrey-based group's office in Mexico City. "Yes, we've had problems, but we think we have dealt with them."

The group's difficulties, say its top executives, stem from a combi-nation of factors that they were unable to anticipate — mainly the rise in worldwide interest rates. They also cite a surge of lowpriced imports of competitive goods and a shortage of bank cred-it to finance the public's purchases of appliances and real estate.

These developments have affect-ed Alfa's profit outlook for 1981. EMBE The cost of carrying the group's $2.3-billion foreign debt, for example, rose by $110 million, to $500 million, and forced a slowdown in its expansion and diversification programs. Alfa's total assets, though, are still expected to grow Harke 25 percent this year, to about $5 billion.

Alfa's crisis has not aroused universal sympathy, Many businessmen resent the group's policy of paying higher-than-normal salaries to the executives it lured from other companies and above-mar-ket prices for the corporations it took over in diversifying. Foreign bankers react to Alfa's troubles in various ways. "These are just cash-flow problems - nothing very serious," said the representative of a U.S. bank

the Bank of America and the Chase Manhattan Bank.

The group's stunning growth since 1977 did not seem out of harmony with Mexico's own econom-ic expansion, which has averaged 8 percent a year. Some analysis see Alfa's problems as a symptom of Mexico's overbeated economy, which has resulted from high oil revenues, continued foreign borrowing and huge public spending. Alfa has led a dynamic existence ever sioce Bernardo Garza Sada formed the group in 1974 when the Garza Sada family's industrial empire was divided up.

Foreign Capital

"At the time, 90 percent of our assets were in Hylsa [Steel] and the rest in paper and packaging," re-called Jesus Guzman, Alfa's financial director. "The companies were healthy, we had good profits and we saw our competitors expanding their steel capacity, so we decided to invest less in steel and diversi-

Alfa began seeking joint ven-tures with U.S., Western European and Japanese multinational corporations.

The group's growth began in carnest after mounting oil discov-cries and production had enabled the Mexican economy to recover from the crisis following the 1976 currency devaluation.

"Our year of consolidatioo was 1977," said Everardo Elizondo, Alfa's chief economist. "Between 1978 and 1980 we averaged 30 percent real growth."

Image of Confidence

Alfa's glossy annual reports tell a tale of rapid growth. Between 1976 and 1980, assets grew from $740 million to $3.9 billion, sales grew from $380 million to $2 billion, profits grew from $30 million to $160 million, and personnel grew from 16,560 to 49,019.

Radiating an image of corporate confidence. Alfa bought the luxuri-ous Las Hadas hotel at the Pacific resort of Manzanillo as the jewel of its tourism development. Alfa built ultramodern headquarters for itself in Monterrey and added afleet of executive jets.

Now Alfa's top managers concede that several companies it cquired have serious shortcomings, such as obsolete machinery, In the field of consumer goods, Alfa found it had overestimated the banking system's ability to finance purchases on credit. And when the government lifted some protectionist import barriers last year to fight domestic inflation, the sales of Alfa's paper, appliance and synthetic-fiber companies slumped. As the conglomerate started big expansion and investment prothat lends to Alfa. grams, interest rates began to rise home vidcotaping does not violate sharply. "At first, we saw the high the law if it is for private use.

troduced an austerity program. "All that business of private jets over," Mr. Morales Doria said. Although seven aircraft worth $28 million are still on order, be said. they will be sold.

When Alfa dismissed some 2,000 highly paid executives, the severance costs totaled $30 million, but there will be an annual saving of $95 million in salaries. Alfa decided to sell its share in Vistar kitchen appliances, a joint

By Andrew Pollack New York Times Service

NEW YORK - International Business Machines has introduced its most powerful computer, a machine that will be up to 40 percent faster than its current top model. The new processor, along with numerous other oew products and priciog changes anoouoced Wednesday, was viewed by analysts as an attempt to shore up laggiog earnings and to make IBM more competitive against Amdahl Corp. and other companies that make computers that are essentially interchangeable with IBM's.

The new computer, the 3081 model group K, is the second version in the 3081 family, which was introduced last November. While 40 percent faster than the first model, the oew one will cost only 16 percent more - $4.3 million compared with $3.7 million. "It strengthens (BM's competitiveness at the high end," said Thomas J. Crotty, an analyst with the Gartner Group.

Analysis also coted that the moves might help IBM's earnings, which have suffered from unfavorable currency translations and other factors, and that the pricing changes for other large computers would encourage customers to buy the machines rather than reot them, which could result in better earnings in the short term.

Aoalysts debated, bowever, what effect the announcement would have on the manufacturers of computers that run programs developed by IBM but that try to best the IBM machines in speed or

Although a decision on new bank funding is less imminent, the analysts said the banks must consider ways to belp AEG through the end of the year.

They said they expect the banks to limit new help to a decision to forgo interest payments due on AEG's outstanding liabilities of about 3.5 billion Deutsche marks, At the end of last year, AEG had only half last year's financial reserves of 554 million DM.

A loss of roughly the magnitude of last year's 278 million DM, which followed the 1979 loss of 968 million DM, would wipe out reserves unless extraordinary measures are taken, they said.

Dim U.S. Auto Outlook Forces VW Delay

By Amanda Bennerr AP-Dow Jones BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa. -

Volkswagen of America has pushed back the starting date of its second U.S. assembly plant by about two mooths to September, 1982

James McLernon, president of the unit of Volkswagenwerk AG. said that production at its orw plant at Sterling Heights, Mich., north of Detroit, will be delayed because market conditions are weaker than the company original-ly expected. A Detroit-area metalworkers strike also slowed con-

Matthofer Says Deficits to Swell

The Associated Press BONN - The West German government faces even greater deficits than expected in its 1981 and 1982 budgets, Finance Minister Hans Matthöfer disclosed Thursday in a parliament budget committee session.

Mr. Mattböfer said the 1981 gap would be 3 billion to 4 billion Deutsche marks, which will require a rise in government borrow-ing. For 1982, be predicted a gap of nearly 7 billion DM, to be covered by increased borrowing and from central-bank profit owed the government

Mr. Matthöfer said that in the current calendar budget year, tax revenue would he 1 billion DM lower than anticipated, and an ad-ditional 500 million DM would be required by the Federal Labor Office to pay unemployment benefits. Interest rate payments would exceed the amount provided for in the 1981 budget by 1 billion DM, he added.

struction, mainly at the point plant, he said.

The plant is to produce some version of the Rabbit subcompact that the company now builds in its U.S. assembly plant in Westmore-land, Pa. That could include little pickup trucks based on the Rabbit, which also are being assembled at the Pennsylvania plant,

This is a bad time for Volkswagen of America, based in Troy, Mich., to be adding a plant. So far this year, sales of the company's Rabbit model are off by more than 12 percent. To try to move the models, Volkswagen has had to join other U.S. manufacturers in offering extensive price incentives. In the last few mooths, Volkswagen has trimmed back its once enthusiastic production schedules at Pennsylvania by 14.5 percent to 940 units a day from 1,100 a day, eliminating overtime and laying off about 300 employees.

Volkswagen does not expect cooditions to improve soon. It is forecasting 1982 sales for the entire U.S. market of about 10.2 million units, about a 13-percent in-crease from the 9 million units ex-pected to be sold in all of 1981. It also predicts that sales of VWs in 1982 will rise by 16 percent to 337,500 units from 290,000 units in 1981, including 232,500 Rabbit and Rabbit pickup models, up 16 percent from the 200,000 units it expects to sell this year.

Volkswagen officials say that they do not expect to feel much of an upturn until at least the spring, They add that the portion of the market most severely affected by the downturn is the mid-priced market of between $7,500 and $10,000. Many of the company's Rabbit-based models are near that price range Mr. MeLernon spoke at a news cooference here introducing Volkswagen of America's new Quantum model. The model, imported from the company's West German pareat company, replaces the old Dasher as VW's top-of-the-line model. It will be priced from $10,250 for the lowest priced version to $10.950 for the wagon. If the market does not improve as expected, Mr. McLernon said.

Some analysis speculated that further changes in either the star-tup date of the plant or the rate of production acceleration is possible, "We watch it oo a mooth-tomonth basis," he said. # Japan and the USA a Comparative Study

In the initial part of our Annual Report, we consider the competitive position of German companies in world markets. Our conclusion: great efforts are required in many areas for Germany to realize its potential. Higher productivity and new investment are more important than consumption and individual well-being.

Company Loans Reach DM 9 billion

Total assets rose by 9% to DM 11.6 billion, of which DM 8.5 billion are long term company loans. Bridge financing remained in high demand; to achieve a more solid funding base for capital expenditures, these interim financings should soon be replaced by long term loans.

New Business Relations

Approximately one third of our credit business during the reporting period was with new customer relationships. Measured by the number of credits, 84% of new credit business was for smaller credit amounts of DM 1 million or less.

Unchanged Dividend

Net income amounted to DM 30 million, matching previous year's results. DM 12 million were appropriated to capital reserves. An unchanged dividend of DM 7 per DM 50 par value share will be distributed to shareholders.

Shareholders' Equity Increased

At the end of the business year 1980/81, shareholders' equity amounted to DM 383 million. In April, 1981, as a response to continued business growth, share capital was increased by DM 18 million to DM 144 million, Taking into account the issue price of the new shares, shareholders' equity increased in all by DM43 million to DM 427 million.

FROM THE YAROSLAVSKY STATION Russia Perceived By Elizabeth Pond. 296 pp. $12.95 Universe Books, 381 Park Ave. South, New York 10016. Reviewed by John Leonard

RUSSIAN JOURNAL

By Andrea Lee. 239 pp. $13.50.

Random House, 201 East 50th St., New York 10022.

A NDREA LEE, a young U.S. grad-uate student who spent a year studying at Moscow State University, sums up her experience with these words: "I struggled with the discovery of my attachment to Russia as a woman might struggle upon finding that she is in love with a man she does not respect and of whose heart she is, in the final analysis, quite ignorant." Elizabeth Pond, a tough-minded vet-eran of Prague, Tokyo and Saigon, ends her two years as Moscow corre-spondent for the Christian Science Monitor on the Trans-Siberian Railroad, riding toward Kolyma and into the past, in angry tears. It is as if, like the old women of It is as if, like the old women of Moscow mentioned by Lee, both writ-ers were collecting, bloody maple leaves. It is also as if, like the golo-myanka fish in Lake Baikal men-tioned by Pond, both books had ad-justed "their specific center of gravity to match the exact water pressure at any depth" and thus were "so transparent that anyone with a potion to do so could read a book through them." The text, written under water on maple leaves, is that Russia we can't get to the bottom of or end of — "splendid" and "disastrous" as Pasternak's "Zhivago" said. We are two-thirds of the way through "Russian Journal" before Lee, describing a troubled Eritrean student, tells us, "Toward me he showed the absolute lack of interest with which many Africans greet American blacks." We have been with Lee to a Leningrad beriozka store, a communal bath, a B.B. King concert and a Russian Orthodox Easter service. We have listened in as she teach-es English to Jews hoping to emigrate, as she celebrates Christmas with the slippery Victor Louis, as she kneels in the night next to a part-time KGB informer to hear a nightingale, as she stomps along io a Moscow discotheque to an interverent song about Russia — "Rah! Rah! Raspu-tin" — sung in English by a black group that records in West Germany.

Powers of Observation

We have met her friends — one has memorized Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary, another of royal blood re-fuses the attentions of a wanton film star, a third deals "on the left" (the black market), a fourth sneaks into the U.S. Embassy to drink gin and tonic — and we have complete confi-dence in her powers of observation. She is teaching herself, with stunning success, to be a writer. After she has explained that Mos-cow at night is drab and forbidding because there is no neon ("advertising, of course, is the glamorous offspring of capitalism and art"); after she outlines "a country of passionate friendships and lukewarm sex": after the brats, hippies, dissident artists, urla (working-class toughs), babushki and bureaucrats; after all the beer and vodka bottles tossed out the window of her tower dormitory --- she says she is black, and says no more. It is a daring strategy, because we want to know more: was it better or worse for her, being black? Does it help account for her critical intelligence, her wait-and-see, her lyrical exactitude?

Not a word. Lee has been to Har-vard and to Paris. She will leave Mos-cow for the Aegean. In "the logical light," she will miss her dark tower and despise the clumsy spics. Only a remarkable writer could throw away remarkable writer could inrow away such a badge of identity and insist on our seeing, anyway, precisely what she saw, on her austere terms, with her mixture of disgust and grudging love. Pond dreams of Eugenia Ginzburg, going into the world wind; of Dos-toevski, transfigured at Omsk; of Pasternak and Mandelstam and Abbmetaria: of the wives of the Da Akhmatova; of the wives of the Decembrists following their husbands into exile. Russian literature is Rusinto exhic Russian interating is Rus-sian history. Against a "command economy" and so much subservience and so much sloth, what avails but po-erry and religion? And yet the fact abides, a knife in the dream: so much drama, so few consumer comforts, so many dead. Pond counts, it is an heroic tabulation.

She would agree with Lee that not all Soviet dissidents are talented, that, Russian husbands are male chauvinist: pies: that the average Russian is more of a materialist than the average citi-zen of almost any other country, and talks too much about jeans, razor blades, toilet paper, motor cars and vegetables. She would wish that her companions on the train — grand-mother, mother, daughter — were emblematic, somehow literary. But she is haunted by the facts.

haunted by the facts. How many women are in the Acad-emy or on the Politboro? Why is the cost of bread in "work time". Is min-utes per kilo in Moscow, 12 in Lon-don, 8 in Washington? If the top 5 percent in the Soviet Union has six times as much money as the bottom 5, why not move to England, where the "semi-decile" relationship is 5 to 1, or 1.152 3 Sweden, where it is 3 to 1? Considerthe 70,000 Soviet censors; they have banned Beethoven's "Polish Drinking Song" and Che Guevara's "Tactics of Guerrilla Warfare" and all the sex in French movies, as though they were a 21 2 10

Moral Majority. Pond is superb on the Soviet abuse of psychiatry, the grain problem, mili-tary postures, recalcitrant national-ties, the treason of the clerks, imped-alism, what a mixed economy like-as pan's might teach the sluggish bear and how Moscow intellectuals talk: 1.1 do you like Voltaire? He was a bad influence on Catherine the Great. Pond's pessimistic reportage is, in fact, indispensable, as Lee's literary self-creation is enthralling. As in Sur-realistic art, also banned, these horses fly. and weep. . John Leonard is on the staff of The New York Times. 5 V

L OOKING at the North-South bands on the diagramed deal, one would probably chose to play a part score in diamonds, making 10 tricks with the actual lie of the cards. However, it was difficult to stop the low game and most players arrived in three no-trump. This appears to stand or fall on finding an even split in the diamond suit, but one of the team winners managed to succeed. A spade lead to the ten was won with the king, and this left West with the burden of guarding the suit. A low diamond was led, and when West won with the queen, he should have per-severed with spades. However, he gave the declarer some badly needed

Napoleon Letters Found in Chicago

Restors CHICAGO — Nineteen letters writ-ten by Napoleon between 1806 and 1815 and stolen from a French museum in the mid-1970s have been recov-

The FBI spokesman said. The FBI spokesman said Wednes-day that the letters, written to Mar-shal Louis Berthier and of priorless historical value, had been purchased by an American who was not involved in the theft from a French military museum in Vincennes, a Paris suburb. They were then donated to the Newberry Library in Chicago The buyers cooperated with the authorities and no arrests would be made in the United States, although at least one person is to be charged in France, he added. The letters are to be returned to the museum.

the closed hand. South hopefully cashed the dia-mond ace and was disappointed when West showed out. But West made a fatal error by discarding a beart in-stead of a club. A diamond thek was surrendered to East and the spade reclosed hand. The position was now this:

Now South could play a club and eventually force West to lead from the heart king. The heart ten can be left unguarded in dummy, since West cannot afford to lead the king.

The winning defense was not easy to find, given the original spade lead If West had continued spades at the third trick and South had continued diamonds, West would have had to save all his hearts. Then East would have had to shift to a heart, not an obvious play, for the defense to prevail

Heavyweight Ex-Champ Johansson Trains for N.Y. Marathon

From Agency Dispatches NEW YORK ---- Former heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson, whose powerful right hand was called the "Hammer of Thor," will get a chance Sunday to see if his legs are also a gift from the heavens when he runs in the 26.2mile New York City Marathon.

For any boxer - active or retired - running is one of the miscrable necessities of the game. But the 49-year-old Johansson, a native of Sweden who now lives in Pompano Beach, Fla, never did fit the stereotype of a boxer, Nicknamed "Ingo," he fought only 28 professional fights, his big-gest a third-round knockout of Floyd Patterson on June 26, 1959, in which he knocked the champion down seven times to win the title.

Winner at the End

Patterson regained the crown a year later by knocking out Johans-son in five rounds. Five months later he was knocked out again by Patterson - this time in the sixth - but went on to win his next four bouts and capture the European heavyweight title in the process.

Yanks Subdue Dodgers, 3-0, To Take Command in Series

azilou Mart

By Thomas Boswell

Vashington Past Service NEW YORK - Perbaps the quality that baseball demaods most and isolates most is poise amid pressure and confusion. The capacity to execute the most precise acts in moments of madness is what the World Series is about

No team in baseball has that calm in crisis to the degree that the New York Yankees have it. That's wby the Los Angeles Dodgers trail in the 78th Series, two games to none, after their bloodless 3-0 execution Wednesday night.

In the countless little fundamental plays of the game, the Yankees are patient and releotless. The Dodgers are all too buman. The most unflappable and pa-tient Yankee may be Tommy John, who was at the center of the victory with his pitching, fielding and bunting.

When the Yankees needed a nice, quiet beginning so they would have time to solve the Dodgers' best postseason pitcher, starter and loser Burt Hooton, John provided it - by retiring the first dozen Dodgers in a row.

When the Yankees needed mar-velous clutch pitching in the fifth inning — thanks to an error, the Dodgers had men at first and third with one out - John provided that, too. First, he struck out tough contact hitter Ken Landreaux. Then he made a dazzling goldglove stop of a Steve Yeager liner back to the box and threw to first off-balance to end the only frightening inning the Yankees faced.

As John marched off the mound, he uncharacteristically pumped his fist in the air and, for unobtrusive sacrifice bunt in the bottom of the fifth, John did that expertly, moving Willie Randolph into scoring position; Ran-dolph came home on a short, twoout RBI double by Larry Milbonrne.

Lastly, when other pitchers especially one who has won 89 games in the last five years (the second-highest total in the majors) - might have squawked at being hooked from a game when they had a three-hit shutout through seven innings, John just shrugged man when be is surrounded by Gossage, who, after his usual save, has these staggering postsea-son stats — 13 innings, 6 hits, 15 strikeouts, no runs - may be the Yankees' monolithic monster. But it is all the other, less conspicuous, Yankees who make this team a purist's delight. When New York needed a couple of insurance runs in the eighth to alleviate the tension of a 1-0 lead, it did it with clean dispatch.

Two old coots - Lou Piniella and Graig Nettles - knocked out Steve Howe with a couple of soft, go-the-other-way hits. Dave Stewart was greeted by equally creaky Bob Watson, who grounded his second hit of the night precisely through the left side of the infield for an RBI.

NEW YORK — At an import-ant moment in a game with Milwaukee the other day Reggie Jackson batted the baseball over a distant wall for a home run. It was a good piece of workmanship under pressure and precisely the kind of work for which Jacksoo is paid a generous salary. What made it interesting was Jackson's reaction to his own work. Having struck the ball with authoritative finality, he did not immediately fling the bat aside and start the ritual lope Baker around the bases as beavy hitters usually do. Instead, be stood there smiling and joined the crowd in admiring the flight of the ball.

While he stood motionless with cheers thundering down over him, the expressioo caught by the TV camera was an ecstasy of self-satisfaction. Once he started to ruo the bases and came back to home plate, his teammates would give him the ritual handshakes, but during this long moment Jackson was enjoying something more sat-isfying than titual. He was shaking hands with himself, speaking figur-atively, of course, and it was obviously a high bonor.

I made nothing much of this public display of immodesty until a few days later when the Nobel Prize people awarded their literature prize to Elias Canetti, a Bulgarian who writes in German and is scarcely a household name even in Bulgaria. The press treated Canetti as another Nobel literary joke, confirmiog a suspicion that if offered the works of Tolstoy, Proust and Joyce, the Nobel literature judges would inevitably give the prize to a Nepalese poet whose work is published only in shoppers' throwaways in Katman-

But why not Elias Canetu? Isn't he precisely the kiod of writer who ought to be recognized by prize givers? Prizes of this sart are ridiculous at best, but if there is any justification for them it consists in

they bestow on obscure and conscientious workmen. Most often prizes are heaped on the people who need them least; namely, the rich and famous. In the American scheme they are usually awarded chiefly for richness and fame. Of what possible value can an Academy Award be to Eliz-abeth Taylor? Or a Pulitzer Prize to Norman Mailer? John O'Hara's books made him rich and celebrated, but the prize givers' refusal to issue him a certificate of recognitioo infuriated him. When a friend told him that writing had given him all a man could want of life, he replied, "I know that, but damn it, I want the medals." The psychological need for the medals — what explains it? The medals, after all, are given by committees subject to political and mercantile pressures, committees that must compromise the preju-dices of members not always terribly astute about the arts. It is the oature of committees to settle nine times out of 10 for the second-rate, yet persons of great talent almost invariably accept the medals, not as testimony that they are second-raters, but as certifica-tion of the validity of their wealth and fame.

Which brings us back to Reggie Jackson io front of 50,000 people congratulating himself on doing his work well. Jackson's wealth and fame are legend in the baseball business, but his work of late has not been of the very best quality. at least as quantified by the mathematics with which baseball - unlike the arts - measures achievement. His claim to excellence oow rests on unmeasurable, subjective criteria. A picturesque persona that swells the box office, a genius for smiting the essential blow at the precisely right moment in spite of flabby statistics in the not terribly vital moments.

With its enslavement to mathematical measurements, baseball cannot award Jackson its dandiest prizes. Jackson must make do by certifying his own excellence.

Sure, baseball has given him ev-erything a man could want of life but, damn it, he wants the medals, even if he has to pin them on himself.

New York Times Service HAWORTH, N.J. — "Fil tell you what the n you what the Japanese are," said a disgruntled member of the Haworth Country Club. The Japanese are too . . . too successful."

The growing Japanese commu-nity in the New York metropolitan area presents something of a problem to the old-timers at the Haworth Country Club, They are not such a prejudiced lot, really, these club members.

They are angry and say they would be lashing out at the Little Sisters of the Poor if it were they who bought their country club and raised the fee for playing weekend golf from about $300 this year to between $5,500 and $10,500 next season. But it was three Japanese businessmen who did.

Heavy Influx

The Japanese have recently settled in great oumbers in Bergen County, most of them em-ployed by about 70 Japanese cor-porations in northern New Jersey. There have been a lot of jokes about installing geisha girls in the locker room," said Frank Giordano, a club member who had gone to the home of another member, Fred Cicetti, to discuss the turn of events.

"And Tora! Tora! Tora! golf carts," said Cicetti, who has a public relations concern in Leo-nia. "But the jokes have turned to resentment. A lot of the members are very bitter."

"A Real Switcheroo"

cent Japanese.

Cicetti calls the situation "a real switcheroo" on the classic case of suburban country clubs discriminating against minority groups. "It's obvious," he said, "they're trying to boot us out so that they can make this an all-Japanese club,"

Another member, George W. LeBolt, has threatened to file a discrimination suit. "It's to the and industrious and always very polite. If three Japanese families point," Giordano, a plumber, moved in on this block no one said laughingly, "where the other day a guy I was playing with said: 'Look! There's an Ameriwould mind. But all of a sudden I find that I don't like them. "Raising my fees from $275 to can!" and started waving."

$5,000 to drive me out is heavy-handed," he said. "It's rude and Paul Sashikata, who became a manager when the club changed impolite and frankly out of charhands last January, rejects the charges of discrimination and de-Cicetti attributed the situation nies that there is any intent to cultivate an all-Japanese memto what he called a fanaticism for golf among the Japanese and he bership. "To put it simply," he said, "we are making major im-provements in the golf course and the clubhouse, upgrading the said this was creating long lines at local golf courses and driving ranges. Sashikata will not argue with the notion. He explained that club from a semiprivate to a priplaying golf was extremely ex-pensive and quite difficult in Javate club and appealing to a dif-ferent clientele. Toshi Morioka, told of $200,000 initiation fees at He did say, however, that the club has done some television ad-vertising in New York alongside some clubs in Japan, of $100 to Japanese-language programming and that he can envision the $200 green fees for one round of golf, of having to schedule tee time weeks in advance and of membership becoming 70 perhigh that charge $40 an hour and have $2,500 initiation fees. (There is a religion in Japan, the For his part, Cicetti said: "This is a classic case of how bigotry is created. I've always admired the Japanese people for Perfect Liberty Kyodan, which claims about a million members creating a great society and cul-ture on a small island and everyand has driving ranges atop thing else. I think they are astate many of its churches).

Some wives of Japanese businessmen here, he said, "go crazy — bitrally — because their hus-bands play golf all weekend, eve-ry weekend during their two and three-year assignments in Ameri-CR

"It's a shame," Giordano said. "it was a nice club. I'll miss the camaraderie." Giordano is a member of a club-within-the-country club, informally known as "the men's club," which has about 200 members, holds golf tournaments and social functions and has been in existence since before the country club opened in 1968. Spokesmen said the men's club would probably be disbanded because guidlines for next season preclude reserving large blocks of course time for its tournaments. "It galls you," said Ed Brett, president of the men's club, "that these people can come to this country, take over and squeeze you out. They bought the club and next thing they'll be buying homes — they seem to the only people who can afford them "You don't like to be pushed around," be said. "A lot of our members fought in the Pacific in World War II and there's a lot of talk about forgive and forget, but some can't forget."

"It frightens me," Giordano said, "it really does, that outsid-ers — Arabs and Japanese — are coming in and buying things up and pricing Americans out of the market, making us second-class citizens." Cicetti argued that Americans have been doing this around the world for many year; This is just the Japanese version of the ugly American."

throughout the world and has given a needed shot in the arm to the men's clothing industry abroad." Deploring the dress babits of Reagan, Alfonso Caprio, president of the guild said: "He simply doesn't know bow to dress, therefore seldom looks presidential. He ought to consult with Mr. Haig every morning about what to wear." The guild named Watter Cronkite "All-American" dresser. About 15,000 people listened to the French composer of "Oxygene" and other best-selling albums, ap-plauding occasionally but showing more interest in the spectacular laser light show than in the cerily hypnotic music. The stadium was nearly full when the concert start-ed but almost half the audience ed, but almost half the audience left before the end — as happens at more conventional functions too, since Peking's buses stop run-ning at around 10 o'clock. WE Fait A full bouse in London's Royal Festival Hall gave an enthusiastic reception to the recently defected (Nervo son and grandson of the Soviet composer Dmitri Shostakovich. Making their British debut, Maxim conducted the Londoo Philbarmonic Orchestra in an all-Shostakovich program featuring his 19-year-old son Dmitri as soloist in the Second Piano Concerto. The Times of London critic said the composer's son conducted "nobly" and "fervently" and the young pia-nist bore "an astonishing resem-blance to his grandfather." Io an interview in the London Daily Mail, Maxim, 43, who defected to the United States with his son last April, said his motive was to clear. his father's reputation from any suggestions that he sympathized with the Soviet Communist regime. "I came out to clean up my father's image — to clean off the dirt that Soviet propaganda has smeared on it," he was quoted.

Two climbers from a U.S. medical fact-finding expedition have reached the top of Mount Everest, the Nepal Ministry of Tourism said. The ministry, quoting a radio report from the expedition, said Christopher Kopcynski, 33, and his Sherpa aide Sundere, 20, reached the summit of 29,028 feet (8,848 meters) Wednesday. The conquest of the world's tallest mountain was the third for Americans, tying the record of three held by Japanese climbers. Previous U.S. expeditions scaled Everest in 1963 and 1976 while the Japanese did it in 1970, 1973 and 1975. At the top, Kopcjynski and Sundere took the temperature and wind's pressure, and did heart and hung, tests. The data will be added to results from tests done in the expedition's high altitude camps. Once the information is compiled, it will help the treatment of heart and lung patients, since they often suffer from low levels of oxygen, ac-cording to expedition leader Dr.
